ANTHROPOLOGY

ANTH 541a/F&ES 836a/ HIST 965a/PLSC 779a
Agrarian Societies: Culture, Society, History, and Development
Alan Mikhail, Peter Perdue, Kalyanakrishnan Sivaramakrishnan
An interdisciplinary examination of agrarian societies, contemporary and historical, Western and non-Western. Major analytical perspectives from anthropology, economics, history, political science, and environmental studies are used to develop a meaning-centered and historically grounded account of the transformations of rural society. Team-taught.

ANTH 542b
Cultures and Markets: Asia Connected through Time and Space
Helen Siu
Historical and contemporary movement of people, goods, and cultural meanings that have connected an Asian region spanning East Asia, Indian Ocean, Middle East, and Africa. The course rethinks state-centered and land-based perspectives by highlighting the dynamism in multiethnic commercial nodes, port cities, and transregional institutions, and their impact on local societies. It focuses on agents of trade, colonial encounters, diverse religious traditions, and global finance flows. It examines the cultures of capital and market in the age of empires, the neoliberal and postsocialist worlds.

ANTH 545a
Cultural Performance in Modern East Asia
Susan Brownell
The history and anthropology of organized cultural events in East Asia from the early twentieth century to the present. The relationship between globalization and international events such as the Olympic Games and world's fairs; global, national, regional, and local levels in a ritual system. Research methodologies for studying and interpreting cultural performance; theories of mega-event, media event, spectacle, festival, and ritual; concepts of public diplomacy, national image, city branding, and soft power.

ANTH 562b
Unity and Diversity in Chinese Culture and Society
Helen Siu
An exploration of the Chinese identity as it has been reworked over the centuries. Major works in Chinese anthropology and their intellectual connections with general anthropology and historical studies. Topics include kinship and marriage, marketing systems, rituals and popular religion, ethnicity and state making, and the cultural nexus of power.
ANTH 726b/ARCG 726b  Ancient Civilizations of the Eurasian Steppes  William Honeychurch
Th 9.25–11.15
Peoples of the steppe zone, stretching from Eastern Europe to Mongolia, have played a pivotal role in Old World prehistory, though much about their societies and lifeways is still shrouded in mystery. The archaeology of this macro-region has developed rapidly since the 1990s, and this course presents an overview of major topics and debates in the region based on what archaeologists currently know about Eurasian steppe societies of the past.

ANTH 797a/ARCG 797a  Archaeology of East Asia  Anne Underhill
T 9.25-11.15
Introduction to the findings and practice of archaeology in China, Japan, Korea, and southeast Asia. Methods used by archaeologists to interpret social organization, economic organization, and ritual life. Attention to major transformations such as the initial peopling of an area, establishment of farming villages, the development of cities, interregional interactions, and the nature of political authority.

ANTH 941a  Research Seminar in Japan Anthropology  William Kelly
HTBA
The seminar offers professional preparation for doctoral students in Japan anthropology through systematic readings and analysis of the anthropological literature, in English and in Japanese. Permission of the instructor required.

ARCHAEOLOGICAL STUDIES

ARCG 726b/ANTH 726b  Ancient Civilizations of the Eurasian Steppes  William Honeychurch
Th 9.25–11.15
Peoples of the steppe zone, stretching from Eastern Europe to Mongolia, have played a pivotal role in Old World prehistory, though much about their societies and lifeways is still shrouded in mystery. ARCHITECTURE, SCHOOL OF

ARCH 3264b  “Micro” in Japanese Architecture and Urbanism  Sunil Bald
M 9.30-11.20
This seminar focuses on recent trends in Japanese architecture and design culture over the past twenty years that developed since the bursting of the bubble economy and the architectural excess it enabled. The course looks at architectural, urban, and aesthetic concepts that embrace the diminutive. Topics include the contemporary Japanese house, micro-urbanism, return to nature movements, and concepts of both the cute and monstrous. These are explored through a series of lenses that engage tradition, pragmatism, sustainability, gender, and nationalism. The seminar requires readings and class discussion as well as an independent research project that culminates in a presentation and a paper. Limited enrollment.

ARCH 3265a  Architecture and Urbanism in Modern Japan  Yoko Kawai
W 1.30-3.20
This course examines how design philosophies and methodologies were developed in Japanese architecture during the 130-year period from the Meiji Restoration until the postmodern era. Special attention is paid to the process of urbanization through repeated destructions and the forming of cultural identity through mutual interactions with the West, both of which worked as major forces that shaped architectural developments. Highlighted architects include Chuta Ito, Goichi Takeda, Frank Lloyd Wright, Kameki Tsuchiura, Sutemi Horiguchi, Kunio Maekawa, Kenzo Tange, Arata Isozaki, Fumihiko Maki, Kisho Kurokawa, Kazuo Shinohara, Tadao Ando, and Mirei Shigemori. Historical photos and excerpts from films are used to better understand context. Students are required to make in-class presentations and write a final paper. Limited enrollment.

ARCH 3266b
Building China Modern 1919-1958
Amy Lelyveld
M 11.30-1.20

The search for an architecture that is both Chinese and modern has been under way for more than a hundred years. At the beginning of the last century, many were looking for just such a new language of building—one that could be both culturally specific and international. China started this grappling early, and it continues to this day. This architectural quest has run parallel to radically changing ideas of what China and Chinese ought to represent. This seminar examines experiments in Chinese building during three important periods: around the May Fourth Movement (1919), during Nationalist China (1927–48), and in the inaugural years of the People’s Republic. Each period had its own distinct mindset, but in all of them the reimagining of Chinese architecture was considered of paramount importance. While this course reviews the “tradition” of Chinese architecture, its focus is on the “experiments” in changing it. Student’s research is concentrated on identifying and exploring case studies using primary resources located in Yale University’s deep research collections (e.g., Sterling Memorial Library’s periodical holdings and Manuscripts and Archives collections, along with the Divinity School’s records on China-based missions). Limited enrollment.

ARCH 4216a/F&ES 782a
Globalization Space: International Infrastructure and Extrastatecraft
Keller Easterling
MW 10.30-11.20

This lecture course researches global infrastructures as a medium of transnational polity. Lectures visit the networks of trade, communication, tourism, labor, air, rail, highway, oil, hydrology, finance, and activism. Case studies travel around the world to, for instance, free trade zones in Dubai, IT campuses in South Asia, high-speed rail in Saudi Arabia, cable/satellite networks in Africa, highways in India, a resort in the DPRK, golf courses in China, oil-financed development in Sudan, and automated ports. These investigations begin in transnational territory where new infrastructure consortia operate in parallel to or in partnership with nations. Not only an atlas or survey of physical networks and shared protocols, the course also considers their pervasive and long-term effects on polity and culture. Infrastructures may constitute a de facto parliament of global decision making or an intensely spatial extra statecraft. Each week, readings, with both evidence and discursive commentary, accompany two lectures and a discussion section. A short midterm paper establishes each student’s research question for the term. A longer final paper completes the requirements of the course. Limited enrollment.

COMPARATIVE LITERATURE

CPLT 912a/EALL 801a
Media Theory, Capitalism, and Japanese Modernity
Seth Jacobowitz
T 2.30-4.30

This course introduces students to key aspects of Western media theory and media history through readings by leading thinkers such as Gilles Deleuze and Félix Guattari, Friedrich Kittler, Lewis Mumford, Martin Heidegger, and Marshall McLuhan. It then brings these works into dialogue with recent critical studies of Japanese modernity, capitalism, and contemporary information society by Naoki Sakai, Karatani Kojin, Akira Lippit, Azuma Hiroki, and others. All readings are in English.

DIVINITY SCHOOL

REL 917H/F&ES 785E
East Asian Religions and Ecology
John Grim, Mary Tucker
W 4.00-5.00

This course introduces the East Asian religious traditions of Confucianism, Daoism and East Asian Buddhism in relation to the emerging field of religion and ecology. This overview course identifies developments in the traditions that highlight their ecological implications into the contemporary period. In particular, it relates religious concepts, textual analysis, ritual activities, and institutional formations within the traditions to engaged, on-the-ground environmental projects. It investigates the symbolic and lived expressions in religious ethics, and practices that can be defined as religious ecologies. Similarly, it identifies narratives in Confucianism, Daoism, and East Asian Buddhism that orient humans to the cosmos, namely, religious cosmologies. This interrelationship of narratives and religious environmentalism provides pathways into the study of religion and ecology. Prerequisite: Introduction to Religion and Ecology. This course runs from February 25 to April 15.

East Asian Languages and Literatures

EALL 511a/WGSS 770a  Women and Literature in Traditional China  Kang-i Sun Chang
T, Th 1:00-2:15
This course focuses on major women writers in traditional China, as well as representations of women by male authors. Topics include the power of women’s writing; women and material culture; women in exile; courtesans; Taoist and Buddhist nuns; widow poets; the cross-dressing women; the female body and its metaphors; foot binding and its implications; women’s notion of love and death; the aesthetic of illness; women and revolution; women’s poetry clubs; the function of memory in women’s literature; problems of gender and genre. All readings in translation; no knowledge of Chinese required. Some Chinese texts provided for students who read Chinese.

EALL 517a  Chinese Informal Prose  Tina Lu
M 1:30-3:20
Translation and discussion of classical essays: first, models of gwénn (ancient-style prose) from the Tang and Song dynasties, and second, the transformation of these models in the late Ming and early Qing into xiaopin (”lesser works”). Gwénn as a choice both for philosophical and speculative writing and for describing the minutiae of everyday life.

EALL 536a  Japanese Poetry and Poetics  Edward Kamens
W 1:30-3:20
Core concepts of traditional poetics studied through selections from anthologies and treatises from the ninth to the early twentieth century, alongside many critical studies, with reference to transcultural poetic theories. Special attention to related artifacts in Yale collections. No knowledge of Japanese required.

EALL 548b  Modern Chinese Literature  Jing Tsu
T 1:30-3:20
An introduction to modern Chinese literature. Topics include Sinophone studies, East Asian diaspora, theories of comparison, technologies of writing and new literacies, realism, translation, globalization, scientism, and culture.

EALL 555b  Japanese Modernism  Seth Jacobowitz
T, Th 11:35-12:50
This course surveys Japanese literature, art, and mass culture of the interwar period (1920s–1940s). We consider various topics such as the cultural logic of “erotic, grotesque, nonsense”; the popularity of the detective novel; the rise of the “modern girl”; changing representations of the city; and the meanings and contexts of modernism. Readings include novels by Tanizaki Junichiro, Kawabata Yasunari, and Edogawa Rampo; avant-garde poetry by Hagiwara Sakutaro; and modernist art by the Mavo collective and the erstwhile School of Paris contributor Foujita Tsuguharu.

EALL 575b/FILM 680b  Crime in Japanese Film and Fiction  Aaron Gerow
MW 2:30-3:45; Screenings M 7:00
The depiction of crime in Japanese film and fiction, with a focus on the detective and gangster genres. Social, historical, and aesthetic implications, as well as differences from Euro-American and Asian crime films.

EALL 600b  Sinological Methods  Pauline Lin
Th 2:30–4:20
A research course in Chinese studies, designed for students with background in modern and literary Chinese. Exploration and evaluation of the wealth of primary sources and research tools available in Chinese. For native speakers of Chinese, introduction to the secondary literature in English and instruction in writing professionally in English on topics about China. Topics include the compilation and development of Chinese bibliographies; bibliophiles’ notes; editions, censorship, and textual variation and reliability; specialized dictionaries; maps and geographical gazetteers; genealogies and biographical sources; archaeological and visual materials; and major Chinese encyclopedias and compendia.

EAST ASIAN STUDIES

EAST 501/SOCY 507 Social Science Workshop on Contemporary China Deborah Davis
F 11.45-12.45
A weekly workshop to encourage dialogue across disciplines among faculty, visiting professionals, and graduate students doing research in contemporary China. At each session, one Yale faculty, visitor, or advanced graduate student speaks briefly in regard to current work in progress. In most weeks, a paper or memo is circulated in advance, and each session allows for extensive discussion. One unit of course credit is available to students who attend 80 percent of the sessions in both terms and submit a thirty-page paper. Permission of the instructor required.

EAST 519b China in World Politics Jessica Weiss
MW 10.30-11.20
China’s rise to prominence and its foreign relations from 1949 to the present, focusing on the post-Mao period.

EAST 557b State and Society in Post-Mao China Jessica Weiss
W 3.30-5.20
State-society relations in the People’s Republic of China. Popular protest and social mobilization, media commercialization and the Internet, and prospects for political reform and democratization.

EAST 596a/SOCY 596a Wealth and Poverty in Modern China Deborah Davis
W 1.30-3.20
The underlying causes and consequences of the changing distribution of income, material assets, and political power in contemporary China. Substantive focus on inequality and stratification. Instruction in the use of online Chinese resources relevant to research. Optional weekly Chinese language discussions. Permission of the instructor required.

GLBAL AFFAIRS

GLBL 618a/MGT 911a
The Next China
Stephen Roach

MW 10.30-11.20

Born out of necessity in the post-Cultural Revolution chaos of the late 1970s, modern China is about reforms, opening up, and transition. The Next China will be driven by the transition from an export- and investment-led development model to a pro-consumption model. China’s new model could unmask a dual identity crisis—underscored by China’s need to embrace political reform and the West’s long-standing misperceptions about China. Prerequisite: basic undergraduate macroeconomics.

HISTORY

Circa 1000
Valerie Hansen, Mary Miller, Anders Winroth

M 3.30-5.20

The world in the year 1000, when the different regions of the world participated in complex networks. Archaeological excavations reveal that the Vikings reached L’Anse aux Meadows, Canada, at roughly the same time that the Kitan people defeated China’s Song dynasty and established a powerful empire stretching across the grasslands of Eurasia. Viking chieftains donned Chinese silks while Chinese princesses treasured Baltic amber among their jewelry. In what is now the American Southwest, the people of Chaco Canyon feasted on tropical chocolate, while the lords of Chichen Itza wore New Mexican turquoise—yet never knew the Huari lords of the central Andes. Islamic armies conquered territory in western China (modern Xinjiang) and northern India (around Delhi) for the first time. In this seminar, students read interpretative texts based on archaeology and primary sources, work with material culture, and develop skills of cross-cultural analysis.

HIST 868b
Documents in Tang, Song, and Yuan Dynasties
Valerie Hansen

W 1.30–3.20

A survey of the historical genres of premodern China: the dynastic histories, other chronicles, gazetteers, literati notes, and Buddhist and Daoist canons. How to determine what different information these sources contain for research topics in different fields. Prerequisite: at least one term of classical Chinese.
HIST 872b/EALL 824b  The Shenbao Lab: Explorations in Chinese Digital Humanities
W 3:30–5:20  Peter Perdue
The availability of abundant online sources in Chinese promises to reshape dramatically the ways in which we study modern Chinese history, but we need to gain experience in using new techniques of analysis of online digital sources. The complete online database of the text of the Shanghai newspaper Shenbao and part of its illustrated supplement, Dianshizhai Huabao, offers students new possibilities for looking at many topics of interest. These include the effects of mass journalism on public sentiments and the public sphere; the audiences of popular images and text; the relationship between elite writers and popular audiences; the overlapping and distinct appeals of literary tropes, mythology, news of Western affairs, and domestic news; and the impact of new technologies on Chinese urban society. Students read these and other online materials and write research papers that use them for original perspectives in modern Chinese cultural and social history. Prerequisites: knowledge of classical and modern Chinese. Open to qualified undergraduates with permission of the instructor.

HIST 882b/EALL 782b  The Life of the Analects: From the Beginnings to the Present
M 3:30-5:20  Annping Chin
The course examines the formation of the Analects, its political uses in China’s imperial court, and its moral sway over the populace. It also looks at Western responses in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Emphasis is placed on the historical circumstances that allowed the text to grow and thrive.

HIST 884b  Readings in the History of Modern Japan
W 1:30-3:20  Daniel Botsman
This class offers students an opportunity to explore recent English-language scholarship on the history of modern Japan (post-1868).

HIST 965a/ANTH 541a/ F&ES 836a/PLSC 779a  Agrarian Societies: Culture, Society, History, and Development
W 1:30–5:20  Alan Mikhail, Peter Perdue, Kalyanakrishnan Sivaramakrishnan
An interdisciplinary examination of agrarian societies, contemporary and historical, Western and non-Western. Major analytical perspectives from anthropology, economics, history, political science, and environmental studies are used to develop a meaning-centered and historically grounded account of the transformations of rural society. Team-taught.

HISTORY OF ART

HSAR 746a/HIST 800a/ MDVL 565a  Circa 1000
M 3:30-5:20  Valerie Hansen, Mary Miller, Anders Winroth
The world in the year 1000, when the different regions of the world participated in complex networks. Archaeological excavations reveal that the Vikings reached L’Anse aux Meadows, Canada, at roughly the same time that the Kitan people defeated China’s Song dynasty and established a powerful empire stretching across the grasslands of Eurasia. Viking chieftains donned Chinese silks while Chinese princesses treasured Baltic amber among their jewelry. In what is now the American Southwest, the people of Chaco Canyon feasted on tropical chocolate, while the lords of Chichen Itza wore New Mexican turquoise—yet never knew the Huari lords of the central Andes. Islamic armies conquered territory in western China (modern Xinjiang) and northern India (around Delhi) for the first time. In this seminar, students read interpretative texts based on archaeology and primary sources, work with material culture, and develop skills of cross-cultural analysis.

HSAR 814b  Japan’s Global Baroque
W 9:25-11:15  Mimi Hall Yiengpruksawan
The intersection of art, science, and diplomacy at Kyoto and Nagasaki in the time of Japanese, Portuguese, Spanish, and Dutch cultural and mercantile interaction in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, with attention to the entangled political relations linking the shogun Toyotomi Hideyoshi, Philip II of Spain, Jesuit missionaries such as Alessandro Valignano, and the Christian daimyō of Kyushu and the Inland Sea. Focus on Japanese castle architecture, nanban screens, world maps, arte sacra, and tea ceremony practices as related to the importation of European arte sacra, prints and drawings, scientific instruments, and world atlases such as Theatrum Orbis Terrarum. Includes inquiry into backformations such as “baroque” and “global” to describe and/or interpret sixteenth- and seventeenth-century cultural productions.

<td>Born out of necessity in the post-Cultural Revolution chaos of the late 1970s, modern China is about reforms, opening up, and transition. The Next China will be driven by the transition from an export- and investment-led development model to a pro-consumption model. China’s new model could unmask a dual identity crisis—underscored by China’s need to embrace political reform and the West’s long-standing misperceptions about China. Prerequisite: basic undergraduate macroeconomics.</td>
