

JIM BUTTERWORTH — BIOGRAPHY —

Jim Butterworth is a founder and principal of Incite Productions, a Colorado-based nonprofit company that produces documentaries promoting positive social change around the world. Incite's debut film, Seoul Train, has been in competition at more than seventy international film festivals, won more than a dozen major awards, and inspired countless grassroots and policy-level actions worldwide. Seoul Train, which Jim produced and directed, has been translated to twenty languages, and has had national TV broadcasts in more than a dozen countries, including on the Emmy® award winning PBS series Independent Lens. In January 2007, Seoul Train was bestowed the Alfred I. duPont – Columbia University Award for excellence in broadcast journalism and investigative reporting, the most prestigious prize in television and radio news, and the broadcast equivalent of the Pulitzer Prize.

Jim also has a successful career in technology and finance. In 1999, Jim founded LC39 Ventures, a seed-stage venture capital firm and one of the top-performing venture funds of 1999-2002. In 1995, Jim founded Netcast Communications Corp., a pioneer in the streaming of audio and video over the Internet. Prior to Netcast, Jim worked with technology, media and telecom companies as an investment banker at Lehman Brothers, where he was also responsible for building the firm's leading tracking stock practice. Earlier in his career, Jim held marketing positions with Unisys Corporation and Data General, and worked as an operations analyst and simulation programmer for Rockwell International.

Jim is a frequent public speaker, having presented on Capitol Hill and before other legislative bodies worldwide, to the Council on Foreign Relations, and at dozens of international conferences. He has also made numerous appearances on television and radio, including on CNN, ABC, MSNBC, CNBC, FOX, NHK (Japan), Canal + (France), National Public Radio, Radio Free Europe, Radio Free Asia and many other national and local media. He has been featured in print publications including Newsweek, Business 2.0, Crain's New York and Fast Company magazine, and cited in many others.

Jim holds an Master of Business Administration (MBA) from the Amos Tuck School at Dartmouth College and a Bachelor of Industrial & Systems Engineering (ISyE) from the Georgia Institute of Technology. He is the inventor of nine issued U.S. and foreign patents, an Emeritus Member of the Alumni Advisory Board of the ISyE School at Georgia Tech, an inductee into the Georgia Tech College of Engineering Council of Outstanding Young Engineering Alumni, and a frequent college lecturer on business planning and documentary filmmaking. He is also the recipient of the 2007 Dartmouth College Social Justice Award for significant contribution to social justice. A recent immigrant to Colorado from New York City, Jim is an avid rock climber, skier and mountain biker.
